By The MD Road Crew

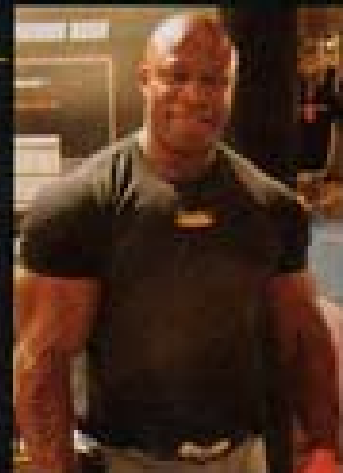

The 2005 Nationals was documented by the upcoming reality TV show, "Road to the Pros." What an incredibly perfect name for a view of what it takes to get your pro card that culminates in such a well-attended, well run show. The bodybuilding audience, of which we all are a part, appreciates the excitement the Nationals generates and brought it to Atlanta in buckets. It was cranked up a notch this year because, as it has many times in the past, the "favorite" leading in has been denied his ticket to the majors more than once. So, everyone who could swing it made it out to Atlanta. Check 'em out...

Are we at a bodybuilding show, or an eating contest?

Dexter enjoys his off season diet.

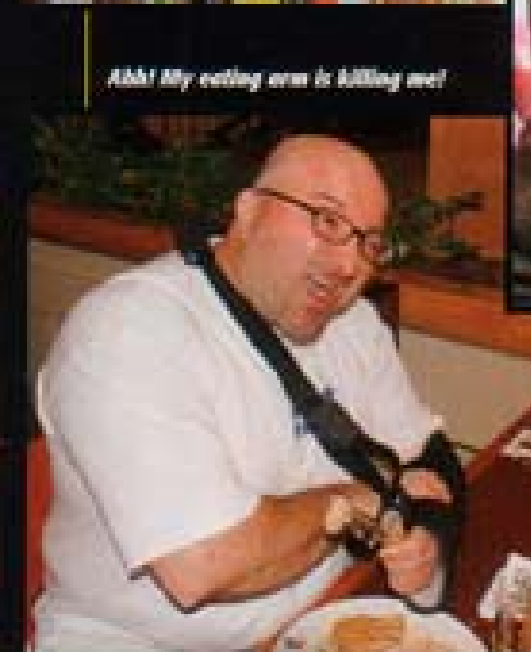

Make sure you save room for dessert!

Now this is dessert!

An Ace between two Eights.

Ahh! My eating arm is killing me!

Let's see, I'll have...

Mmmm, jelly!
